Executive Offices

Palladia is a premium range of serviced offices and meeting facilities that include some of London's most elegant and well-placed buildings.

As well as a diverse portfolio of properties in excellent locations, you can expect outstanding service from this leading name in serviced office space. This means absolute discretion and meticulous attention to detail.

All Palladia properties are finished to a high specification, attractively furnished, and equipped with leading edge technology.

New Business Interiors works with Mrs Helen Heaney, Business Centre Manager at Palladia Stockley Park on various refurbishment projects assisting with the provision of bespoke office space for blue chip clients.

The greatest challenges faced are timescales, once a new lease has been signed by the client, Executive Offices and New Business Interiors are often required to specify and install within a restricted time-frame; out of hours work is often required to ensure minimal disruption.

New Business Interiors have now completed numerous internal alterations within the Stockley Park building and have since started working with the Amersham and Mayfair offices.

Client Comment:

Although we have only been doing business with New Business Interiors for a short amount of time, we have found them to be responsive and accommodating on both large and small projects. They are always keen to ensure the customers are happy and customer service is definitely high on their list of priorities from the Sales person through to the guys who come on site to do the work. Their high quality end product matches our 5 star image, but without huge cost and I am looking forward to working with them in the future.
